Once it had been determined that all Jews were to be removed from their homes and sent to the numerous concentration camps for work etc, the Jewish people, who were forcibly removed, only had a few moments (in many cases) to gather up whatever they could carry. These possessions they carried might have included food, clothing and/or personal belongings. Your task is to go home this evening and literally pack a suitcase or backpack (whatever you choose) with whatever you might need with the understanding that you may never get back to your home again. The criteria are:

1. You may only bring with you what you can carry.
2. You are required to write down what you bring.
3. Most importantly, indicate why you have chosen each item.
   You will have an opportunity to reflect on your selections at a later date on one of your journal pages.
